In this document, you will find information about how the plan works, the expenses that may be charged, and information that will help you make informed decisions when selecting and managing the investment of your account.

General Plan Information

The following provides an explanation of how you may direct investments in the Plan and outlines the restrictions and policies that apply to the investment options available under your Plan:

Once the 30-day hold has expired, you can then trade again in accordance with the above guideline.
- At the request of the fund company of an underlying fund, and as outlined in their prospectus, the following additional restrictions may be imposed on your account, including but not limited to:
  - Applying redemption fees and/or trade restrictions which may be more restrictive than the above guidelines,
  - Restricting the number of exchanges made during a defined period,
  - Restricting the dollar amount of exchanges,
  - Restricting the method used to submit exchanges (i.e. requiring exchange requests to be submitted in writing via U.S. mail),
  - Restricting exchanges into and out of certain investment options.

REDEMPTION FEES

An underlying mutual fund may apply a redemption fee or other fee for certain investment transfers.

- This fee is deducted from your account.

The composite interest rate is a dollar-weighted average rate of all contributions to that Guaranteed Interest Account during that reporting year. A separate composite interest rate is calculated for each GIA term and each reporting year, if applicable. For example, separate composite interest rates would be calculated for deposits made to the 3-year and 10-year GIAs. Further, separate composite interest rates would be calculated for the 3-year GIAs from one reporting year to another. The GIA balance will continue to earn that reporting year's composite interest rate until the end of the guaranteed term.
